

The image shows a section of a museum gallery. The wall is made of rough-hewn stone. At the top, there are three arched windows with metal grilles. Below them, a horizontal stone band runs across the wall. In the center of this band, the French phrase "Il y a d'autres mondes mais ils sont dans celui-ci" is displayed in large, gold-colored, sans-serif capital letters. Below the text, the wall features two large, semi-circular arches. Each arch is constructed from brick and contains a metal railing. The interior of the arches is dimly lit, revealing a vaulted ceiling and some dark objects on the floor. The overall atmosphere is historical and contemplative.
